

Real Supervision

Support for your professional practice

- Do you undertake educational or psychological assessments?
- Would you like help with difficult cases?
- Would you benefit from constructive feedback on your reports?
- Who would you turn to if your practice was challenged?
- Or do you want to improve the support you provide to your staff?

Practitioners in the psychological professions all use supervision (regular discussion with peers and a supervisor) to support their practice. So can you by joining the Real Supervision community. Feel supported, ensure your practice is rigorous and continue to develop professional skills.

Real Supervision is for teachers, tutors, psychologists, SENCOs and learning mentors - all those working in education. It is an innovative and unique service for those who wish to develop and maintain excellent practice and who hold relevant qualifications such as the Certificate of Competence in Educational Testing (CCET).

The Supervisors

The supervisors are experienced chartered educational psychologists and are listed on www.realsupervision.co.uk. They will abide by the relevant British Psychological Society Codes. You will be asked to protect confidentiality and ensure that clients give their permission for you to discuss their cases.

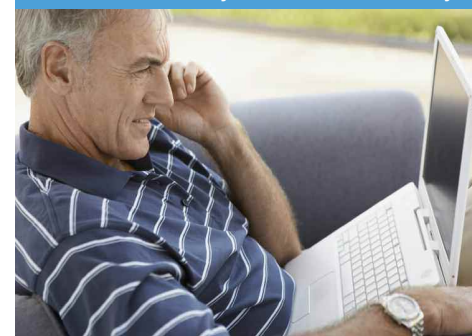

Benefit from

- an educational psychologist supervisor for telephone or online support
- seeking advice and support in a safe and supportive online community
- online discussions with peers and supervisors
- receiving feedback on your reports
- access to relevant resources (e.g. test reviews, relevant links and news)
- telephone supervision that can be provided to landlines in 34 countries

THE PROBLEM

Continuous learning is an essential requirement to succeed in working life. However, it is hard to keep up. Suitable help is often hard to find.

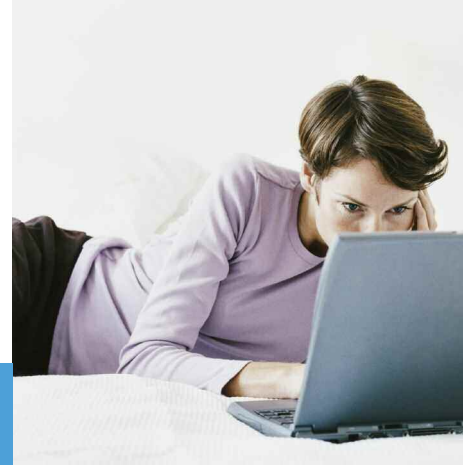

"Times have changed"
Professional support and expert advice is now just one click away.
